Hell hath no fury like a man scorned. Isla learns that lesson all too well when she agrees to go to a party with her half-demon best friend, Alistair, to help him make his vampire ex-boyfriend jealous. Their plan backfires when Alistair's ex turns out to be more psycho than Isla realized, and she finds herself being kidnapped and sold on the supernatural black market. While Isla's only human, she's spent her life surrounded by supernatural creatures. Her situation is precarious, but she's pretty sure she knows what to expect. At least, until her buyer ends up transporting her to a completely different realm called Briya where nobody speaks her language. Isla is gifted to the four Guardians of Briya-Reule, Audun, Maalik, and Caelan. With the dreaded Beast's Moon looming right around the corner, the Guardians are expected to choose a mate. They're furious with their king for his scheming, and they're determined to help Isla find her way back home to Alistair. But the timing of Isla's arrival complicates everything, and they find themselves drawn to her no matter how hard they try to fight their instincts.

This 2009 book includes papers on the challenges faced by linguists working in Indigenous communities, Maori and Hawaiian revitalization efforts, the use of technology in language revitalization, and Indigenous language assessment. Of particular interest are Darrell Kipp's introductory essay on the challenges faced starting and maintaining a small immersion school and Margaret Noori's description of the satisfaction garnered from raising her children as speakers of her Anishinaabemowin language. Dr. Christine Sims writes in her American Indian Quarterly review that it "covers a broad variety of topics and information that will be of interest to practitioners, researchers, and advocates of Indigenous languages." Includes three chapters on the Maori language: Changing Pronunciation of the Maori Language - Implications for Revitalization; Language is Life - The Worldview of Second Language Speakers of Maori; Reo o te Kainga (Language of the Home) - A Ngai Te Rangi Language Regeneration Project.

"An upside-down, funhouse treat. You'll lick it up." - USA Today In 1913, little Malka Treynovsky flees Russia with her family. Bedazzled by tales of gold and movie stardom, she tricks them into buying tickets for America. Yet no sooner do they land on the squalid Lower East Side of Manhattan when Malka is crippled and abandoned in the street. Taken in by an Italian ices peddler, she manages to survive through cunning and inventiveness. As she learns the secrets of his trade, she begins to shape her own destiny. She falls in love with a gorgeous, illiterate radical named Albert, and they set off across America in an ice cream truck. Slowly, she transforms herself into Lillian Dunkle, "The Ice Cream Queen" -- doyenne of an empire of ice cream franchises and a celebrated television personality. Yet Lillian Dunkle is nothing like the whimsical motherly persona she crafts for herself in the media. Conniving, profane, and irreverent, she is a supremely complex woman who prefers a good stiff drink to an ice cream cone. And when her past begins to catch up with her, everything she has spent her life building will be at stake.

In Allegories of the Anthropocene Elizabeth M. DeLoughrey traces how indigenous and postcolonial peoples in the Caribbean and Pacific Islands grapple with the enormity of colonialism and anthropogenic climate change through art, poetry, and literature. In these works, authors and artists use allegory as a means to understand the multiscale complexities of the Anthropocene and to critique the violence of capitalism, militarism, and the postcolonial state. DeLoughrey examines the work of a wide range of artists and writers—including poets Kamau Brathwaite and Kathy Jetñil-Kijiner, Dominican installation artist Tony Capellán, and authors Keri Hulme and Erna Brodber—whose work addresses Caribbean plantations, irradiated Pacific atolls, global flows of waste, and allegorical representations of the ocean and the island. In examining how island writers and artists address the experience of finding themselves at the forefront of the existential threat posed by climate change, DeLoughrey demonstrates how the Anthropocene and empire are mutually constitutive and establishes the vital importance of allegorical art and literature in understanding our global environmental crisis.

SINOPSISUn violonchelo Stradivarius sobre el que recae una inquietante leyenda. Una misteriosa desaparición. Un crimen sin resolver.Una historia de fantasmas donde nada es lo que parece.Julio de 2019Los principales rotativos del mundo abren con una impactante noticia: la desaparición de la famosa chelista Rebecca Blackwood durante una noche de tormenta, mientras navegaba en su velero con la única compañía de su marido y su asistente. Las intensas labores de búsqueda y la exhaustiva investigación policial no consiguen arrojar ninguna pista sobre lo que le ha ocurrido. 31 de octubre de 2019En solo unas horas, Álvaro Tristán, el marido de Rebecca, heredará la cuantiosa fortuna de la joven. Acosado por las deudas y deseando relanzar su carrera de actor, aguarda a que se produzca la inminente declaración de fallecimiento de su esposa, que le dará acceso a todos sus bienes. Sin embargo, la repentina aparición de un cadáver que podría ser el de Rebecca, da un giro inesperado a la investigación, poniendo en riesgo todos sus planes.Mientras, Lord Lawrence Blackwood, el abuelo de Rebecca, no duda en señalar a Tristán como el único responsable de la desaparición de la joven. Desesperado por que el caso no se cierre, relegando a su nieta al olvido, el viejo héroe de la Segunda Guerra Mundial está dispuesto a todo con tal de evitar que Álvaro consiga su objetivo. Comienza así una frenética batalla entre los dos bandos en la que ambos tienen mucho que ganar... y que perder. En solo cuestión de horas, mientras una tormenta perfecta descarga sobre Madrid, se decidirá el destino de los bienes de la chelista, entre ellos un raro y valiosísimo Stradivarius con una enigmática leyenda.Pero también, y sobre todo, descubriremos qué le ocurrió realmente a Rebecca Blackwood.SOBRE LA AUTORAAna Trigo es escritora y tasadora de arte y antigüedades. Made to be Seen brings together leading scholars of visual anthropology to examine the historical development of this multifaceted and growing field. Expanding the definition of visual anthropology beyond more limited notions, the contributors to Made to be Seen reflect on the role of the visual in all areas of life. Different essays critically examine a range of topics: art, dress and body adornment, photography, the built environment, digital forms of visual anthropology, indigenous media, the body as a cultural phenomenon, the relationship between experimental and ethnographic film, and more. The first attempt to present a comprehensive overview of the many aspects of an anthropological approach to the study of visual and pictorial culture, Made to be Seen will be the standard reference on the subject for years to come. Students and scholars in anthropology, sociology, visual studies, and cultural studies will greatly benefit from this pioneering look at the way the visual is inextricably threaded through most, if not all, areas of human activity.
