A History of the Mathematical Theories of Attraction and the Figure of the Earth Mossy Feet Books

Norfolk has a wealth of important archaeological sites, historic buildings and landscapes. This guide is the first to use them to tell the county's rich history. Starting with real footprints of people who lived here nearly 1 million years ago, A History of Norfolk in 100 Places will take you on a chronological journey through prehistoric monuments, Roman forts, medieval churches and Nelson's Monument, right up to twentieth-century defensive sites. With detailed entries illustrated by aerial photographs and ground-level shots, here you will find a reliable guide to historic places that are either open to the public, or are visible from public roads or footpaths for you to explore.

Cultural Landscape Report for Martin Van Buren National Historic Site Walch Publishing

The Eastern Subarctic has long been portrayed as a place without history. Challenging this perspective, History in the Making: The Archaeology of the Eastern Subarctic charts the complex and dynamic history of this little known archaeological region of North America. Along the way, the book explores the social processes through which native peoples "made" history in the past and archaeologists and anthropologists later wrote about it. As such, the book offers both a critical history and historiography of the Eastern Subarctic.

Excerpt from Landmarks of Historic Interest Along the Lackawanna Railroad: Wherein Will Be Found Divers Descriptions and Some Photographs of Houses and Lands Which Figured in Stirring Events Before, During and After the War of Revolution On Main Street, Orange, opposite the is a strip of ground called Military Common. Probably many residents of the town have wondered why it was located where it is - right at the side of Main Street, with a street on the other side of it. Most small towns and villages have a Common, or green, where all their public meetings and festivals are held. So far as can be determined, that is the original idea of the common. It was almost in the center of the Village, back in pre-revolution days. Any event of importance in Orange was always celebrated on the common.
